Fifteen Gifts Every Teacher Needs

By Member Julie Rine, Minerva Local EA

As the holiday break nears, I find myself wishing that everything was as easy to give a teacher as a plate filled with homemade cookies wrapped in colored Saran Wrap or a World's Best Teacher mug filled with candy canes. Those gifts are always appreciated and any gesture of gratitude is welcomed. Having said that, if I had a direct line to the North Pole, here is the list I would give Santa for what every teacher deserves this year.

1. A never-ending supply of hand sanitizer, pencils, crayons, glue sticks, paper, tissues, and books: basically any material needed in our classrooms that always runs low and that we usually replenish using our own money.
2. Technology that helps rather than hinders, a server that never goes down, a fast internet connection that works all the time, and tech aides that are always available and happy to help.
3. Colleagues who collaborate with you, who share their best plans and laugh at the flops, who keep a positive attitude, who will cover your class while you dash to the bathroom, and who know when your level of frustration crosses over the line between needing a hug and needing something stronger.
4. Administration who are supportive of all aspects of your teaching, who never hold meetings when an email would suffice, who respect your efforts and your time and your talents, and who understand the very basic fact that treating employees with value and respect will make for a positive workplace and a productive staff.
5. A school board who never looks at teachers as the enemy, who is responsible with the district's finances and who gets creative during negotiations to do everything in its power to meet the needs of the staff both financially and otherwise.
6. Legislators who consider teachers professionals, who trust our judgment and our skills and our motives, who believe that we know what is best when it comes to educational practice. A government that will quit changing educational policies and practices every other year and a President-elect who wants to support public education and recognizes its value in a democracy.
7. Parents who communicate with us just the right amount, who don't hover over their kids and question our every move, but who work with us as partners in helping their children develop and learn lessons, even if some are learned the hard way.
8. No more high-stakes testing for kids or teachers, no more changing required tests every year, no more days out of the classroom to learn what's on the tests or how to administer the tests, and no more kids crying, sleeping, sighing, or otherwise shutting down during tests that do little to measure their true knowledge or growth.
9. Students who have plenty to eat and who come to school every day, who have a stable home life with at least one adult who encourages and praises them but holds them accountable for their actions, who have a thirst for knowledge, who see the importance of our lessons, who follow directions the first time, who believe in themselves, who put forth a full effort, and who treat us and each other with respect.
10. Family and friends who are quiet when you need to work at home and who drag you away from the pile of papers and plans when you need to stop working and start living.
11. A medical kit in your classroom that becomes dusty from non-use, a run-hide-fight plan that becomes obsolete, a day when we don't have to think about what could be used as weapons in our classroom and where we could hide children, because a classroom should have learning tools, not weapons, and children who flourish rather than cower.
12. A society filled with people who believe we should be richly supported and compensated for the very important work we do, and who never, EVER say "It must be nice to have summers off."

13. A full day (okay, a week, since this is a fantasy list, after all) without hearing any of the following right in the middle of a lesson: "Can I go to the bathroom?", "Can I get a drink?", "Is this going to be on the test?", "I was absent yesterday, did I miss anything?", "What page are we on?", "Can I borrow a pencil?", "How do we do this again?", or "How many points is this worth?"

14. Shoes that are stylish yet comfortable, room temperatures to accommodate your hot flashes and cold spells, 75% off sales when you need school clothes, weekly full-body massages, money in the budget to attend professional conferences that renew your passion and reinvigorate your practice, sick days when your lesson plans are already sub-compatible, snow days when you most need a day off, routine when you need comfort and change when you need refreshed.

15. And because none of the above is likely to happen, most of all I wish for patience, energy, and love, in unparalleled amounts and in constant supply. Without these, this job is nearly impossible to do well, and most of us would sacrifice all the actual gifts we will receive this season if we could make the lives of our students such that their dreams become a reality.

Enjoy your break. You've earned it.

ECOEA FALL REP ASSEMBLY 2016

President Julie Nelson presided over her first ECOEA Rep Assembly on Saturday, November 12, 2016, at the CPEA office. Mark Hill, Worthington EA, gave an STRS update. Important actions of the assembly included the election of Cindy Endres, Jackson Classified PA, to the OEA Board of Directors Unit #1 seat and the endorsement of Tamika Moss, Canton Profession EA, for OEA Board of Directors At Large. Tamika was elected to the Board at the OEA Rep Assembly on December 3.

President Julie made several presentations to locals. She announced the 11 locals that qualified for the ECOEA Five Star Award. The drawing for the $500 award was held with Stark County Education Professionals and Trainers Association (SCEPTA) receiving the award this year. President Victoria Freday accepted the award for her association. SCEPTA subsequently donated the award to the Louisville Education Association

Business Manager Valerie Heban announced the Top Ten FCPE locals along with the presentation of the Public Relations grant winners. There were five PR Grant winners awarded for their proposals. Lake Local EA member Chelsea Shoemaker and President Allison McGinnis accepted their award for Chelsea's proposal "Community Relations Outreach Program" which will invite area businesses into the schools to promote the district and form relationships in the community. Accepting for North Canton EA was President Julie Nelson for her proposal "Welcoming Readers to North Canton City Schools." Accepting for Minerva Local EA was President Stuart Grunder for his proposal "MLEA Banner" to promote the Association at school and public events. Accepting for Newcomerstown Teachers' Association was President Janel Travis for the proposal submitted by member Heather Beall "Bringing Back the Pride." NTA will provide shirts for members so the Association will be recognized when members work in the community. The final PR grant was to the Fairless Education Association, President Melissa Kath, for her proposal entitled "Soles 4 Souls" Fairless Helping Fairless is a community organization that assists Fairless students with school needs. Gym shoes will be purchased for those students in need.

Unit Scholarship drawings were held for the three ECOEA $500 scholarships for continuing education for members. Winners were from Unit I-Adam Amato, Fairless EA; from Unit II-Lana Shelley, Rittman EA; and from Unit III-Dr. Geneva Parker, Canton Professional EA. Congratulations to these members!

Senator Lou Gentile (SD 30) was recognized as the ECOEA Friend of Education.

There were 33 delegates from 13 different locals and OEA-R represented at the ECOEA RA. The Spring ECOEA Rep Assembly will be held at the CPEA office on Saturday, April 8, 2017.

The fund raiser drawing winner was Cindy Endres, Jackson Classified Personnel Association. Congratulations, ladies!

LOUISVILLE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION UPDATE

The LEA members voted to return to the classroom after 16 days on the line. They returned without a contract settlement and continue working minus ten members who were put on administrative leave following the strike that ended November 30. LEA stands with these members—4 from the elementary, 4 from the middle school and 2 from the high school, for allegedly deleting unspecified files. As a result, ten classrooms still have substitute teachers and students are left without their regular teachers as well as the uncertainty for these ten members as the investigation continues.

Louisville President Kory Swope addressed the delegates at both the ECOEA and OEA Rep Assemblies this fall. The delegates responded generously with support for the LEA members. LEA received support from around the state in the form of cash, gift cards, canned goods and other consumables, as well as letters of support. Members from area locals and around the state traveled to Louisville to join the picket line. LEA voted to end the strike after 16 days.

Thanks from LEA

"While we have returned to the classroom without a tentative agreement, our fight has not ended. Our fight was not about salary, benefits, or any sort of pay and compensation. Our fight was to ensure all voices are considered equally in the school district; to work collectively with the school community; to give the students the education and schools each one of them deserve. In the end, our fight is about respect.

Throughout our labor strife, we have experienced something amazing amid a trying time. We have developed and grown some incredible partnerships with other OEA locals. The donations, cards, phone calls, and visits showed us the true meaning of unity and solidarity. There are no words to express the gratitude we feel. Up until now, most of us didn't think much about the family aspect of a union, but seeing people from all around the state selflessly giving and sharing in our fight, was humbling and uplifting. We hope to continue to cultivate these relationships moving forward, as we understand they are vital to the success of public schools."—Angela Emmons, LEA spokesperson

FIVE STAR LOCALS FOR 2015-2016

Thirteen ECOEA locals have earned the ECOEA Five Star Award for 2015-2016. The Five Star Award was designed to encourage participation in ECOEA District activities. At the end of the year, local associations that have met at least 5 of the 6 criteria are acknowledged at the ECOEA Fall Rep Assembly for their accomplishment. A drawing is held among the qualifying locals for a $500 unrestricted award. The winner this year was the Stark County Education and Professional Trainers' Association (SCEPTA). To qualify, a local must meet five of the following criteria:

1. Have a local delegate attend at least two of the four ECOEA or OEA Fall and Spring Representative Assemblies
2. Have at least 5% of local membership make FCPE contributions and be in good fiscal standing with OEA
3. Have a full slate of local officers
4. Have the local represented at least one ECOEA training, workshop, roundtable, retreat, or service council
5. Have the local or at least one member apply for ECOEA Public Relations Grant, In-Service Meeting Funds, Levy Assistance, Unit Scholarships, William and Delores Quinn Scholarships, NEA ESP Conference Scholarship, NEA Leadership Summit, or ECOEA Conference Scholarship to OEA Summer Leadership Conference
6. Have a local member serve as a representative on ECOEA or OEA Committees

Eleven locals met the criteria. Those locals who met all six of the criteria are acknowledged with an asterisk.

Canton Professional Educators' Association, Paul Palomba, President

*Fairless Education Association, Melissa Kath, President

Jackson Classified Personnel Association, Cindy Endres, President

Minerva Education Association, Stuart Grunder, President

*North Canton Education Association, Julie Nelson, President

*Newcomerstown Teachers' Association, Janel Travis, President

*Perry Classroom Teachers' Association, Kelli Green, President

Rittman Education Association, Ed Sims, President

SCEPTA, Victoria Freday, President

Southern Local Teachers' Association, Karen Marquis, President

*Wooster Education Association, Scott Miller, President

Locals are encouraged to send their leadership and bargaining teams to the upcoming OEA Collective Bargaining Conference that will be held in Columbus on February 2-4, 2017. ECOEA is proud to offer support to our locals by offering a $50 scholarship to the first ten locals that apply. This is a very affordable and informative conference. Bring the whole team!

You must make your own reservation at the host hotel, the Renaissance Downtown at this link:

Renaissance Conference Registration. However, the hotel bill is covered under the conference fees. The cost of the conference is $100 which includes 2 nights at the Renaissance, based on double occupancy, conference fees, and meals. This is a great opportunity to get your bargaining team together offsite to focus on team building and training. Regional boot camps will follow for more intense training focused on individual local contracts.

The ECOEA scholarship application is located on the ECOEA website at:

ECOEA Receives DLAMC Award

Delegates to the OEA Rep Assembly from ECOEA who attended the Doris L. Allen Minority Caucus banquet on Friday, December 2, were presented a plaque recognizing ECOEA “For Continued Promotion of Minority Involvement”. Accepting the award was President Julie Nelson and Vice President Cindy Endres who were joined at the podium by all ECOEA delegates at the banquet. DLAMC recognized the work of ECOEA in providing equal opportunity for all members and for their continued support of the activities of DLAMC.

Thank you to the DLAMC Committee for this honor!

TOP TEN FCPE LOCALS:

1. Newcomerstown TA
2. Perry Classroom TA
3. Wooster EA
4. Triway EA
5. Massillon EA
6. Fairless EA
7. North Canton EA
8. Minerva Local EA
9. Louisville EA
10. Chippewa EA

The top ten locals donating to FCPE were recognized at the ECOEA Fall RA. These locals have the highest percent member participation and received a certificate of recognition.

Senator Lou Gentile (SD30) was recognized as the ECOEA Friend of Education for his service to public education and workers' rights efforts in the Ohio Senate. President Julie announced the award and Carroll County Rep Llyn Simpson read a tribute to Senator Gentile recognizing his support and accessibility. The Senator was unable to attend the Rep Assembly.
